6. Key strategic interventions are identified and special incentives for respective intervention have been laid out.
7. Strengthening of tourism infrastructure especially in the form of PPP model, special tourism infrastructure Tourism Infrastructure development fund, CSR, etc. are defined in this policy.

2 Introduction

Over the years, the tourism industry has witnessed steady growth and has become a crucial cog in the socio-economic progress of any country. Today, the sector offers far more diversified services than ever before, and it has become imperative to incorporate these services in the mainstream industry. As a consequence, these new and traditional tourism services are closely linked with the development of new destinations.

Tourism has become one of the major sectors in international commerce, and represents, at the same time, one of the main income sources for many developing countries. Today, the sector contributes to 9% of the world GDP through direct, indirect and induced impact and accounts for USD 9.5 trillion of world exports (6% of the world exports). Some of the major developments are given as below:
In addition, the tourism sector has the potential to generate high employment opportunities and at the same time, the spending of both domestic and foreign visitors produces a cascading effect of new money through the economy via the multiplier effect. The multiplier for Travel & Tourism is 3.2 that is for every dollar spent, 3.2 dollars are generated (including indirect and induced impacts). Travel & Tourism is one of the top two job creators with an average of 40 jobs generated per USD 1 million in sales.

The beneficial economic impacts can be summarized as below:

1. Generation of foreign exchange
2. Creation of new job and employment opportunities
3. Stimulation of trade, income and entrepreneurship – especially in the service sector and SMEs
4. Provision of new infrastructure for non-tourism use
5. Increased regional development – particularly in isolated areas
6. Greater tax revenues permitting greater government spending – or reduced taxes on other activities
7. Cascading of new money through a multiplier effect

Thus, keeping the global as well as local developments in perspective, the Government of Maharashtra understands the importance of the Tourism Sector and the opportunity it presents. The state has identified Tourism as a priority sector. Government of Maharashtra proposes to launch the New Maharashtra Tourism Policy which will replace the existing Tourism Policy of Maharashtra released in 2006.

This policy will be a part of the state’s overarching strategy to attract private sector investments in the tourism Sector. Further, this policy will help the state in creating a pro-growth, pro-environment and pro-jobs eco-system in the state of Maharashtra.

3 Tourism Potential of Maharashtra

Maharashtra – Nation within a Nation is the third largest state in the country, both in terms of population and area. The state capital city of Mumbai, one of the largest and most vibrant cities in the world is also the financial and entertainment capital of the country.
Maharashtra is one of the few regions in the world which offers multiple types of destinations for its tourists. It has long coastline of 720 kilometers along the lush green Konkan region. The Western Ghats and the Sahyadri mountain range offer hill stations and water reservoirs with semi-evergreen and deciduous forests. And, the Vidarbha region of Maharashtra, with its dense forests, is home to several wildlife sanctuaries and nature parks.

The state is also blessed with rich history, tradition and culture, which is evident through its world class ancient forts and monuments, ancient cave temples and pilgrimage centers. The state is the leader in the country with respect to foreign tourist arrivals (20.8%) into India and one of the leading states for domestic tourist visits (9.2%).

There have been widespread, interrelated global developments and advancements, which have had a strong bearing on the Tourism sector in India (and in Maharashtra). These include, amongst others:

1. Increased desire and financial mobility for travel of the middle classes (domestic and international)
2. Steep-change increase in air access (airlines, airports and route development) in tandem to decreases in the cost of travel
3. Growth in the quest of travelers for immersive experiences rich in cultural and natural exposure
4. Path-breaking innovations in the field of Information Technology, including mobile usage, digital content creation and sharing
5. More importantly, appreciation of the tourism economy amongst heads of state and policy makers and,
6. Increasing tourism-related infrastructure investment
All of these together present a promising possibility of substantially increasing the Tourist attractiveness in the State, both, for International as well as Domestic tourists.
